

A MEXICAN KILLED.

Antonio Sunstigi, a shepherd, Meets Death at the Hands of Unknown Parties.

Antonio Sunstigi, a Mexican shepherd, was shot and killed by an unknown party, between 7 and 8 o'clock last Friday morning, at a point about two and a half miles west of Bellemont. Sunstigi was in the employ of J. B. Smith and was engaged at the time in driving a band of sheep toward William McIntyre's corral.

The first intimation the officers here had of the tragedy was the receipt of a telegram from Bellemont by Sheriff Cameron, asking him to come there at once. The telegram stated that David Russell, the well known rancher, was suspected of having committed the deed.

The Sheriff and party, accompanied by Justice of the Peace J. C. Milligan, reached Bellemont that evening and an inquest was held on the body of the Mexican. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict, stating that deceased came to his death by a bullet wound inflicted in the back, the bullet ranging upward about three-quarters of an inch and coming out at the chest; the bullet wound being inflicted by a party or parties unknown. In the meantime Sheriff Cameron had arrested Mr. Russell at his home. He was brought to Flagstaff Sunday morning and had his preliminary examination before Justice of the Peace Milligan on Monday.

At the coroner's inquest Vicente Alderte, a shepherd in the employ of William McIntyre, claimed to be an eye-witness of the shooting. He testified that a man, whom he described as having a gray beard, shot into the sheep that the deceased was herding; that Sunstigi told him not to shoot the sheep, whereupon the man fired at him. Sunstigi dodged behind a convenient tree. During this time the witness was tending the sheep, about 150 yards from the point where the shooting was going on. He testified that he heard three shots in all, and when matters had quieted down he went over to the spot to see what had become of his companion. He called to him, but got no answer and believing Sunstigi dead went to where another shepherd was and told him to hurry and tell Mr. Smith that one of his men was killed.

At the preliminary examination Alderte identified David Russell as the one who did the shooting. He further testified that there was an interval of about twenty minutes between the time of the second shot and the third and last.

In defense Mr. Russell was placed on the stand and testified that he was not within two miles of where the shooting took place at the time; he had not left the house all day, with the exception of a trip into the timber on the south side of the track, whither he had gone to drive in the milch cows. Mrs. Russell corroborated this testimony in every particular and testified that Mr. Russell was not absent from the house for more than fifteen minutes, and then was on the south side of the track.

Inasmuch as it was over two miles to the place where the shooting occurred it is hardly probable that Mr. Russell could get there and back in fifteen minutes and also take twenty minutes between shots.

Mr. Russell was however bound over to the grand jury, the evidence of the Mexican being deemed sufficient to warrant holding him.

Dave's many friends are firm in the belief of his innocence and believe that the Mexicans are putting up a job on him. At any rate we believe that when the case comes to trial it will not be a hard matter to convince a jury of his innocence.

The next teachers' quarterly examination for county certificates will be held at the Courthouse at Flagstaff on Monday and Tuesday, September 6 and 7, 1897.

Labor Day Proclamation.
Territory of Arizona, Executive Department. The laws of the United States designate the first Monday in September of each year as a legal holiday to be known as Labor Day.

When we reflect that labor is the foundation and creator of all wealth; that upon it depends all happiness and all excellence; that it is labor that builds up great states and carries on the commerce of the world, the wisdom of this enactment is apparent, and especially is it so when applied to the people of our territory who are laboring to develop its various resources and establish for themselves happy homes. Our busy and industrious communities contain but few drones, hence nearly all can be rightfully classed as laborers—the mechanic, the merchant, the miner, the lawyer, the farmer, the divine, the banker, the physician, the teacher and the clerk, as well as he who performs the more severe tasks of manual labor, are laborers in the best sense of the word, for while many earn their daily bread by the sweat of their faces and others by the work of their brain, they are all toilers.

A general observance of the day so wisely set apart by congress will tend to promote a higher appreciation of the dignity of labor and the great part it is taking in the building up of our territory, and the great republic in which we soon wish to become a state. To bring labor of all kinds into closer relations with itself and with other interests, to inculcate a friendly feeling and hearty co-operation between labor and capital, thus encouraging good will between all classes of the community with a view to pleasant and reciprocal relations is the great object of this great observance of Labor day.

Now, therefore, I, Myron H. McCord, governor of Arizona, do proclaim and declare Monday, the sixth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, a legal holiday, and do most earnestly recommend that all business of whatever nature, except such as the necessities of the community require to be carried on, to be suspended on that day, that all who desire may observe the day in a manner befitting the importance of the occasion.

Let us not forget that Labor day is as important and to future generations will become as suggestive and inspiring as the religious and patriotic holidays that our people so loyally and religiously observe.

Done at Phoenix the capital this 16th day of August, A. D. 1897.

We Do Recognize Competition

BUT NOT IN ARIZONA

WE DON'T beat the band or anyone else—But sell Good, Fresh, First-class Goods as low if not lower than any firm or branch firms in the city can and live. We can do this because our expenses are less than any general store in Arizona in proportion to business done.

We are also here to stay and want all our neighbors to stay with us. People of Coconino county recognize good treatment—and those who have caused prices to be right. We are still with you and desire to LIVE AND LET LIVE.

We buy a carload or two ourselves once in a while—but not of hams, bacon or lard; these we get in smaller lots, so as to furnish good, fresh meats weekly.

None of our customers get sick on our fresh....
